Critical Leadership Skills for Project Leaders

TOPIC DESCRIPTION

Successful project supervision requires strong leadership skills. Most foremen and project managers possess some degree of instinctive leadership skills, but learning additional leadership skills can improve overall leadership effectiveness. Learn the difference between being in charge and being an effective leader. Understand the critical leadership skills of an effective foreman and project manager.

Topics to be discussed include:

- Defining leadership and dispelling the myths of leadership
- The difference between leadership and management
- Making the emotional connection between teams and leaders
- The relationship between leadership and motivation
- Developing effective listening skills
- Creating an atmosphere of trust
- Workers vs. followers
